Label Flow is a barcode application that came out of the Austrian company Adoption. The tool allows you to create, design, print and manage a label out of dozens of templates. The application can be used both on the fly and those cases when you need a template that follows a particular standard. With Label Flow you are able to create different entries based on your needs such as 'Mailing', 'Return Address', 'Round Product', 'Inventory', 'Asset', 'Network PC', 'Shipping' and 'Envelope' that will require different barcodes. You'll be able to print these barcodes in 1D and

2D formats. Each one allows you to attach different types of information to the same barcode such as ID, account number, company name, price, manufacturer, stock quality, lot number and so on. The application will be able to extract data from a database that you already have which will allow you to give your labels a dynamic appearance. With Label Flow you will be able to import text files, CSV files and also from your databases. You can see all the elements on the preview screen and you can quickly change them so you know what you are doing. The tool also allows you to manually add barcode information that is specific to a particular label. In the Editor tab you'll find the different barcode entry options and the drop-down menu that allows you to select the information and the type of barcode you want to create. With the barcode editor you'll be able to simply edit or create a different barcode. To help you with creating a new label, the application will be able to load one of the existing templates that you will have in your database. You can simply delete or change any element that doesn't suit you and save it. From there you can either start all over again or use the template that you want to download and use on the project that needs it. The application allows you to save your projects in a database so you won't need to keep repeating the same steps over and over. You'll be able to save a project to your device whenever you want. An easy to handle Label Flow interface

Label Flow's interface is very straightforward and responsive. You'll be able to create new entries in a matter of seconds. The user can

What's New in the Label Flow?

Label Flow is a powerful piece of software that is created to aid businesses that need to design and print out labels for products, services and so on. With it you are able to print a wide range of barcode formats in 1D and 2D formats.

The application also allows you to extract and use barcode information from a previously created database and much more. A large number of templates to choose from Since products generally need the same barcodes but with different information attached to them, Label Flow supplies a decent amount of templates to work with. It provides 'Mailing', 'Return Address', 'Round Product', 'Inventory', 'Asset', 'Network PC', 'Shipping' and 'Envelope' labels which you can customize and print in a matter of seconds. Each one you choose comes with a preview so you have a clue as to how it will look. Creating a new entry allows you to add barcode specific information such as ID, account number, company name, price, manufacturer, stock quality, lot number and much more. Design your own custom barcodes Label Flow is a well thought out solution for both on the fly situations and those where considerable changes need to be made to a barcode. The application comes with a full featured barcode designer and editor that allows you to work on any of the existing templates. You can't create one from scratch but it's much easier to load one that follows an accurate standard, and delete or replace the elements that you don't need. Regardless of the barcode type you want to create or its complexity, Label Flow's editor is very easy to handle. If you've used any kind of basic graphics editor, then this one will pose no problems. All the tools and features you need to customize the barcodes are placed in plain sight and can be quickly accessed. A practical and reliable label design and management solution Apart from printing and designing labels, Label Flow can also help you out when it comes to managing your projects by allowing you to store them in one single database. On a closing note, taking into consideration all of the above and the numerous features left undiscussed, it's safe to say that Label Flow is indeed a handy all-in-one
