MSG to PDF Converter convert Microsoft Outlook.MSG files into.PDF files. You can convert contacts, appointments, emails, tasks, journals, and other Microsoft Outlook files to.PDF format.The existing communication system is not capable to cope with the requirement of improving its performance and capacity. With the limited available spectrum, the increasing traffic demand, and the expanded applications of the existing wireless communication system, the problem of the capacity is of great concern to the performance improvement of the current systems. In order to improve the transmission capability of current systems, a lot of research has been conducted on multi-antenna technology. For the wireless communication system adopting OFDM technology, multi-antenna technology, for example, Multiple-Input Multiple-Output (MIMO), can be deployed at both transmitter and receiver sides in the MIMO transmission mode. The MIMO transmission mode uses multiple transmitting and receiving antennas at both sides to improve the transmission capability. In a MIMO transmission mode, wireless data is transmitted by means of using the transmitting antennas at the same time and frequency to transmit data over a plurality of transmitting antennas to the receiving antennas. The advantages include increasing the spatial diversity gain and reducing interference. When the receiving terminal receives the signals transmitted by the transmitting terminal over the multiple antennas, the signals received by multiple antennas can be expressed as:
$$y_1=H_{11}x_1+H_{12}x_2+H_{13}x_3+n_1 \quad y_2=H_{21}x_1+H_{22}x_2+H_{23}x_3+n_2 \dots \quad y_n=H_{n1}x_1+H_{n2}x_2+H_{n3}x_3+n_n=H(H)x_n=H(H)_n$$
Equation 1 As shown in Equation 1, y_1 is the received signal, and $n_1, n_2, \dots,$ and y_n are the received signals of other channels. When there are multiple transmit and receive antennas, the channel is mathematically represented as a $M \times N$ matrix, with the channels between each transmitting and receiving antenna being represented by the $M \times 1$ matrix H . In a MIMO system, the transmitting end and the receiving end each need at least one antenna to accomplish the MIMO transmission mode, where M and N are positive integers. The value of M and N is determined by the rate of data transmission, the number of transmit antennas and the number of receive antennas. For a MIMO system, the transmitting

It is an intuitive converter which helps you to convert MSG files to PDF format. Vehicles such as automobiles are becoming increasingly equipped with various types of vehicle-mounted devices such as navigation systems, wireless audio systems, and car-mounted mobile communication terminals. With such vehicle-mounted devices, the user can enjoy various functions such as navigation, audio information, or information about other vehicles by using a small device, such as a display and touch panel, that is installed in the vehicle. Such a vehicle-mounted device is generally attached to the dashboard of the vehicle, and wired to the vehicle's power supply device or a communication line. Moreover, for automatic activation of the device based on the user's location, the device is connected to a vehicle-mounted device fixed to the vehicle. With a conventional vehicle-mounted device, the user needs to perform a manual operation to activate the device each time he or she enters the vehicle. That is, the user must manually connect the vehicle-mounted device to the vehicle's power supply device, or must activate
