You can easily change folder icons in Windows Vista, XP, and 7 using this application. Give your computer the amount of security you need to protect your network and restrict access to only authorized users. In addition to allowing the user to set their own password, this application allows users to create custom groups, requiring groups to explicitly allow or deny access to users or networks. You can manage users' passwords, set their time out, and define maximum number of failed login attempts. Network Security Suite Features: Password Protection: Create a strong password and set it as a password for the entire computer. Users can simply choose to never change their password. Restrict access to computers and entire networks by requiring users to enter a password to access the system. Users can also change their own password and change it for certain groups. If the computer or network is disconnected, users are locked out of their accounts for a maximum of 24 hours. Set maximum number of failed login attempts. Time Lock allows you to manage any user's access to your computer even when they are logged off of your computer. Help protect your computer from theft by requiring access to your computer when a user logs on or off of your computer. Help protect your computer from theft by requiring access to your computer when a user logs on or off of your computer. Delete a user's profile on shutdown and wake up. Access and Password Management: Set password access. When users log in, they are prompted to enter a password. If they forget their password, they can receive a message with a link to a web site where they can reset their password. Manage users' passwords. When users enter their passwords, the application records their password in a secure database. Users can change their password. New users can be added to a specific group or user. Alerts and Notifications: Set and view alerts for your users. Users can be alerted when they are locked out of the computer or when they attempt to access their accounts with the wrong password. Report errorQ: Using recursion to find the greatest value in a list in Java How would I go about creating a method to find the greatest value in a list of integers. My goal is to create a method that will take in an array of integers as a parameter and return the greatest value. Any tips would be greatly appreciated! A: Not totally sure why you are using recursion. You can just use the Collections.max() method. int max = Collections.max(Arrays.asList(myArray)); A: Just use Collections.max() List list = new ArrayList(); list.add(2); list.add(3); list.add(1); list.add(5); list.add(4); Integer max = Collections.max(list); System.out.println(max); A: Long story short: You can't use recursion for this. Recursion has a termination condition, and that is going to be the size of the array. The size of an array is never going to be smaller than the amount of values in the array. This means that if you want the greatest value in an array, you are going to have to process the array once, checking the value of each item, and then finding the maximum. A simple example would be public static int getGreatest(int[] array) { if (array.length == 0 aa67ecbc25
