Mines MATLAB (now MathWorks MATLAB®) uses an intuitive user interface and seamless integration with existing tools to minimize the learning curve for new users, and maximize product access across your organization. MathWorks MATLAB includes: Build-like syntax Unparalleled productivity Toolbox interoperability Embedded toolbox accelerators Support of the latest in computing technology

MathWorks MATLAB has been downloaded more than 2.6 million times and used for teaching and learning at thousands of schools, universities, and research labs around the world. This popular computational environment is designed for professional and student use, from introductory courses to senior-level thesis research. Many of the functions in the toolbox solve the classical geometrical problems, for example, the solutions to the reflective and refractive equations. The solution for  $\theta$  is the familiar sin and cos, while the solution for  $a$  is the familiar tan. All mathematical operations are represented by mex functions. These functions are considered to be native to the MATLAB computer algebra system (CAS) and are more powerful than the standard mathematical functions in the MATLAB command window. For a complete description of the mex functions, refer to the MATLAB documentation. Functions are listed under the following headings: MATLAB Certificate Manager (aka Proficient) This tool is used to implement the MATLAB Proficient certification (an entry-level certification from the Mathworks). It manages the code requirements of the exam and displays the readiness status of the license during a test.
