Gentleman's Club Gentleman's Club is a record label based in Nottingham, UK, with its origins in the early 1980s. It specialises in releasing dub reggae and roots rock music, with an emphasis on local artists. It is now a fully owned subsidiary of Vertigo, the parent company of Warner Music. It was founded by producer, DJ and producer Tony Platt who has also worked with 6-tone band Skrew. In 2017, the label celebrated its 30th anniversary. Roots Reggae One of the label's most popular artists is Roots Reggae, which was founded by Tony Platt and Graham Anderson. Artists that have released albums on the label include Das Mannequin, Streetlight Manifesto and Naum Toom. Early artists to release on the label included The Blackout and Black Slate. Cynthia Sweeney was almost completely buried under the 200-pound airborne crusher. She said as soon as she heard the video, she knew it was her. Sweeney has been chasing storms for more than 30 years. Videos like this one are common, but what was unique about this one was that other people were involved. Sweeney says a group of storm chasers work together to plan the videos and they can cause a lot of trouble. She says in some cases people will get in the way of their own videos because they want to be the one who gets the shot. Sweeney is still searching for the actual first person in the video. She says the plan is to make an agreement with the first person in the video and she wants to get the first shot of a Storm Chaser in a flying emergency. She wants to get that shot on her own, but if not, she says she'll have to give that person a ride. Sweeney says, "If they get blown down, we'll see what happens." Check the video out for yourself. The overall goals of the proposed project are to better understand the mechanism
